Washington Square Players.

The Washington Square Players of New York city are to present ten of their one-act plays at the Belasco Theatre during their week's engagement, commencing October 30. The players have had three years of unusual success in New York and this is the first time in the history of their organization that they have gone out on tour. The plays have been selected as be ing the most popular of the forty-five they have produced.

The organization is made up of ac tors, artists and authors living, for the most part, in New York's "Latin Quar most part, in New York's "Latin Quarter," Greenwich Village, near the square from which the players take their name. They started on their unusual enterprise with the idea that plays might be produced artistically, especially the short plays, and be the better for it, and, regardless of the dismal prophecies of the commercial managers, they have succeeded in a phenomenal manner. nomenal manner. # ON CHARGES OF THEFT. Millard Trazzare, Store Messenger,

Arrested by Police. Millard Trazzare, sixteen years old, 635 D street southeast, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Hughlett and Springman, and charged with having perpetrated a series of thefts at an F street store where he was employed as messenger. Six charges of larceny were preferred against him and his case probably will be referred to the probation officer. It is charged that Trazzare raised orders for money to be used in the purchase of stamps and obtained $70, and it is further alleged that he took money from envelopes when he opened

The detectives say he admitted taking the money, and said he spent $92 of it for clothing during the past few weeks. His case will be heard in the
